

COULD SCARCELY WALK ABOUT

And For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—“I suffered for three summers,” writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, “and the third and last time, was my worst. I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework. I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off. I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman’s tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn’t taken it. After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely. I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether.” Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution. Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy. Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today. A Homer Beat Boston.

Chicago, August 26.—In a game in which Cheney allowed Boston but one hit and no runs and Saler scored Chicago’s only run with a homer, the tension of the close National league race today became so great that the players of both clubs engaged in a fist fight. Several players were banished from the game.
In the seventh inning after Saler drove the ball over to the rightfield screen, Zimmerman followed with a hit to left field and attempted to stretch it into a double. Evers was waiting with the ball and when Zimmerman slid into second base tagged him.
Something unforeseen happened for Evers hit Zimmerman on the head with the ball as the player slid past the base. Zimmerman arose and in a moment a free for all fight followed. Maranville came to Evers’ assistance and a swarm of home players rushed to Zimmerman’s aid. When order was restored Zimmerman, Evers, Maranville and Scudell were sent to the clubhouses. Manager Stallings sent Pitcher Hess to first base for Boston.

GRAIN SHIP STOPPED.
Because She Had Cannons on Her Deck, It Was Claimed.

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Aug. 26.—The Wilson liner Francisco, a British steamer bound for Hull with cargo of grain, was stopped today as she was leaving port by the United States battleship Florida. The Francisco has two 4.7 calibre rifles mounted at her stern and it was these guns which caused her detention. They were in position when the ship arrived here from Hull, August 12.

The Francisco left her dock at Hoboken soon after 8 o’clock this morning and headed slowly down the harbor.

Previously it had been rumored that the United States government would object to her leaving while armed. Officers of the ship informed of this rumor, said the guns had been set up only for saluting purposes.
When off the Statue of Liberty the Francisco dropped anchor and the captain came for his clearance papers. He obtained them and returned early in the afternoon to his ship, which proceeded down the harbor. As she passed the Florida, however, she was signalled to stop. The order was obeyed immediately.
Agents of the Wilson Line here disclaimed any knowledge as to why the steamer had been held up.

At the navy yard, however, it was said tonight that the commander of the Florida had decided the Francisco should be detained until facts concerning her clearance papers had been determined. It further was said the ship would not be allowed to leave the harbor until the investigation had been completed. Tonight the Francisco was still at anchor, close to the Florida.

REMEDY FOR WHEAT PEST.

Oat Aphid Causes an Annual Loss of Thousands of Bushels.
(Prepared by United States Department of Agriculture.)

The little insect that causes an annual loss in this country of thousands of bushels of wheat and known as the “oat aphid” can scarcely be controlled when once it has gained headway. By proper precautions, however, serious outbreaks can be prevented. This insect often escapes notice, but it is probably the most widely distributed of the important plant lice which attack wheat and oats, and its depredations are only excelled by the so called “green bug.”

As the oat aphid does not ordinarily appear suddenly in great swarms, as does the “green bug,” it has never been considered a pest of great importance. It is easily overlooked by the casual observer, especially in the fall, when it occurs at the base of the plants and on the roots. However, it is usually always present on the wheat, and observations lead investigators to consider that these parasites weaken the plants and decrease the yield to an important extent, even though they may not be conspicuous and the decrease in yield not enough to be recognizable, as in the case of the “green bug.”

The adult wingless insect is about the size of a pin head and is yellowish green to olive green in color. The winged insect has a black head, the abdomen being green and the antennae black. The eggs are laid in crevices of the bark or between the leaf bud and twig of the apple tree and when first deposited are pale greenish in color. They soon change, however, to a shining black and retain this color until they hatch in the spring.

The oat aphid occurs on grains and grasses throughout the summer. The eggs are laid but once a year, in the fall, in the spring the eggs hatch, and throughout the summer there are sixteen or more generations produced, all females. The last generation in the fall contains both males and females. As the weather becomes cooler some of the females seek the lower parts or roots of wheat and other plants of the grass family and here pass the winter, or the winged insects coming from the grain may seek such trees as the apple, the egg laying females of this generation in turn depositing eggs on the twigs and branches.

The little wheat pest thrives best in rank growing grain, as in spots where manure piles or straw stacks have stood. These places are usually the center of infestation, and the lice may be found there even during the winter. Therefore the volunteer growth of wheat that occurs in the vicinity of straw stacks or manure piles should be plowed under or otherwise destroyed late in the fall in order to destroy the plant lice breeding thereon. In some cases it may be desirable to destroy this vegetation even earlier—that is, before the winter wheat is planted or at least before it makes any growth above ground.

The pasturing of cattle in wheat and out fields in Oklahoma and Texas during the late fall or early winter has proved a desirable method of destroying the breeding places of the pest.

As in the case of many other grain pests, crop rotation is of much importance in the control of this aphid. Wheat fields should be located as far from the previous year’s grain fields as possible, and especially should they be planted some distance from standing straw stacks. It is also advisable to plant grain as far as possible from apple and other trees which harbor the insect during the fall, winter and spring months.

Direct applications are hardly practicable in grain fields, but where only small areas are badly infested spraying with blackleaf-40 at the rate of one part of this insecticide to 500 parts of water, plus one pound of soap to each 100 gallons of spray liquid, will doubtless prove efficacious provided the application is thorough.

The above remedial and preventive measures for this destructive parasite are all the more important because there is little hope of controlling it after it has once gained much headway and because, being so inconspicuous, it is liable to become a pest in great numbers before it is noticed.
